

Maxim in Haiku 86 - 88

No one precedes God.
Let nothing dominate you.
Reason always rules.

Be above everything that is not God, not allowing yourself to be dominated by any earthly creature but keep all subject to reason. Maxim 86

The virtues you own may be deceptive, having illusions present.

Put no more value on any apparent virtues you may notice in yourself than on deceptive images, reminding yourself always that what is in you and from you is only illusion and sin, and that, even when you have done all, you are an "unprofitable servant." (Lk. 17:10) Maxim 87

All time is precious.
Loose not a minute of it.
Offer all to God.

Be careful about the good use of time which is so precious, not losing a minute of it, devoting and offering it to God unreservedly with very pure and noble intentions. Maxim 88
