Anna Nagro, CSJA

My name is Anna Nagro. I was raised in a small town in central New Mexico. Both of my parents were good role models – inspiring hard work, honesty, charity, generosity, and strong faith. My father worked as a laborer for the Santa Fe and Topeka Railroad. My mother worked as a cook for the main restaurant. She taught us to be self-sufficient, be friendly, be a servant, live, love, laugh, and more! I attended meetings of the Sisters of St. Joseph Associates in 2009, thanks to Josie Shelly who invited me. Then I made my Commitment in 2011. I continue to gather with the associates for prayer and meetings, due to Sister Ann's inspiration. I believe in helping any person whom I meet who needs any type of assistance that I can provide. Perhaps a person needs someone to listen to them, or they need help with a household chore, or perhaps a ride to the grocery store. There might be a need for a home cooked meal or someone to take a walk. I will be there for them. I love serving the "dear neighbor".
