Come and Explore!

The CSJ Associate Webpages have a whole new look.

Donna Sordello, CSJA, Associates Communications Committee

Check out the newly updated associate section of our CSJ Boston website!

"The process of creating web pages that are engaging and easy to digest began with conversations with the associates. These conversations stemmed into drafts of unpublished pages. The four pages are designed to gently guide people as they explore what being an associate is, how to become one, and what the community has to offer," shares Kat Gunther, CSJ Communications Office Print and Digital Designer.

The first page – 'Interested in Becoming an Associate?' – provides readers with the basics of being an associate. At the bottom of the page, you will find three circles. Click the circle, 'Steps on the Journey', to find descriptions of all the steps from the 'Come and See' period right up to the 'Commitment'. Click on 'Meet Some Associates' and read about some of our associates' personal journeys as they began their CSJA relationship. On this page, also take a look at the 'Frequently Asked Questions' section where, you guessed it, we provide answers! Our plan is to continue to update this as more associates share their stories with all of us.

To view the pages, click here, or visit our website, www.csjboston.org, click on 'Join our Mission' in the navigation bar at the top, and click 'Interested in Becoming an Associate?' on the drop-down menu.

CONNECTIONS...

when the Boston Agrégée candidates, mentors and co-directors traveled to Winslow, ME for their September gathering.

Boston with Winslow is like Le Puy with Lyon. The Meeting Owl (a device that serves as a 360-degree camera, mic, and speaker) in the center brings S. Ann Marie Grady to our gathering from Boston.

The three agrégée candidates:
Toni Fredette, Jamie Medeiros,
Julianne Shanklin

Above: S. Claudette Poulin benefits from the Meeting Owl when she is present on screen at our Penthouse gathering.

Left: Brunch gathering with the Winslow Sisters. On the left side of the table is S. Rita Bujold who recently returned to Winslow from the center in LePuy where she does translating.
